BRING BACK SUMMERTIME ( Author: Jeanne Starr Gater )

I just finished reading a book I shall not soon forget. My first reaction after putting it down was an honest.....Wow....!

Bring Back Summertime is a dramatically touching story depicting one family's heartfelt lessons in courage and a testament to the limitless ability of the human spirit when it is supported with unfailing bonds of love and personal faith in a 'higher power'.

Revelations come to us in many ways, shapes and forms, and when the depths of one's love is challenged by circumstance, human vulnerability can either weaken and diminish us or push one to the very limits of our personal strengths. As the reader, you are witness to the human spirit's ability to rally in a fierce battle of wits, mind over matter, belief beyond belief, in an emotionally compelling fight for control over a life.

Out of what appears to the 'medical experts' to be a hopeless situation, comes the revelation of the limitless capabilities of the human spirit when encouraged by 'unwavering faith and the bond of love' of not only each other, but also from family, friends, and community who have been touched by the news of this life changing event. This vital component touches the very soul, personifying the true meaning and significance of those precious vows taken on their wedding day; a promise 'to love, and keep in sickness and health, until death do us part'.

This is a novel; like a beautifully directed film, to be viewed from beginning to end. And when you are done and that lump in your throat subsides, you will be left with wanting to know more about this man and woman and their family who continue through the years sharing the ups and downs, the ongoing challenges and the bonds of love, laughter, tears and accomplishments with children now grown and their children's children; still defying the odds and cherishing the depths of that love for a man who continues to inspire them. Take a deep breath reader, and be prepared to be touched.

My personal thanks to the author, Jeanne Starr Gater, who had the will and courage and incredible aptitude as well as spirit, to have put this event to paper during a time of daunting personal challenges. Perhaps out of the intense need to make sense of it all, she still had the fortitude to not lose sight of the needs of her still growing family; maintaining the necessary supervision over their daily lives to encourage their activities and goals for their own personal accomplishments, as well as nurturing peace of mind and faith that a 'higher power' is a constant force to be drawn upon in their lives. Truly an inspiration for all readers particularly as we face the trials and tribulations of this extremely challenged generation of damaged spirits and wandering souls. SJK Aug 22, 2012
