

Hollywood Studios want true to life faith-based films like:

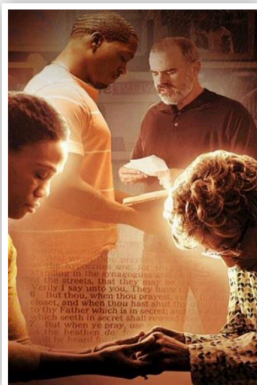

Bring Back Summertime

The screenshot shows a forum post on Topix. The header includes the Topix logo and the forum title 'The Blind Side'. The breadcrumb trail is 'Topix > The Blind Side > Forums & Polls > Hollywood studios embrace star-powered, faith-based films'. The main title of the post is 'Hollywood studios embrace star-powered, faith-based films', posted on Oct 23, 2011, by user 'roboblogger'. The post content begins with 'In many quarters, Hollywood has long been regarded as an essentially godless place.' Below the post, there is a comment by 'Jeanne Starr Gater' from Eatonton, GA, dated Nov 17, 2011. Her comment discusses how Hollywood has embraced faith-based films for their relatable stories and human compassion, specifically mentioning the film 'Bring Back Summertime' and providing a link to its trailer and website.

Bring Back Summertime

COMPARABLE FILMS

As the years roll on, filmmakers are finding it easier to produce theatre quality films that share the truth of the Bible while also telling a compelling story. Recent hits like “The Blind Side, War Room” and “The Pursuit of Happiness” show that audiences are hungry for films that highlight and share their values. 2017 brought with it several religious films that told a variety of stories. Some were true accounts, others based on books. Bring Back Summertime meets both criteria for success and more.

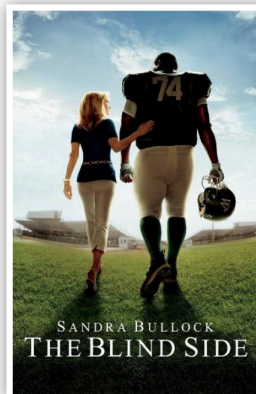

War Room

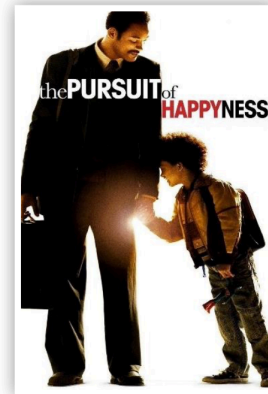

Miracles From Heaven

Heaven is for Real

The Blind Side

The Pursuit of Happiness

